0 out of 5 stars It doesnt do too much, but they like that the head pops off into a rocket ship. I like that it doesnt make noise. My kiddos are 3 and 4. I bought this as a birthday gift for my 3yr old. Both boys fight over it. As an adult, I think there are cooler toys out there for this price; however, my sons would disagree. They are at the age where the size of the gift matters. This was the biggest box on the table, so thats a win. My 3yr old is getting into imagination type playing, and this has become his go to. He loves it. Pretty cool toy for any little kid who likes toy story. Also it doesnt require any batteries or make a ton of noise so his parents dig it too. But in actuality it left a lot to be desired. Many fun functions, great for imaginative play. Not too big, but just the right size! The wings dont even open as it hits the back of the robot. It doesnt light up or speak or do anything other than launch the little rockets. For 50.00 buy something else as this literally does nothing. Bought for my 4 year olds birthday and its not in the least bit entertaining to him. Wasted 50.00 They're a bit pricey in my eyes for what you get—but that's almost all toys now. However, they're so sturdy and long lasting. This one has bullets to shoot, a detachable rocket for buzz and the alien. And a grabber. My 4 yo son has fun with it. And I have no doubt it will hold up for future generations. The plastic is solid, there is a detachable space ship, two miniature figures an alien and Buzz Lightyear, and its super sturdy. My son breaks EVERYTHING within a day or two of purchase, but I got it two months ago and it is going strong. And hes still playing with it every day!! This is a gift I would recommend to ANYONE. I havent seen quality like this in a long time. Thank you!! It's clearly very strong and durable as even though I have caught him standing on it at times it shows no wear and tear. It comes with 2 figures, the robot and the spaceship.

The Buzz Lightyear Robot comes equipped with a launcher in one arm with open ports for loading and firing and in the other hand a claw to pick up villains and drop them in jail, which is located in the left foot when opened up. Also, kids can place Buzz or other Imaginext figures into the spaceship cockpit and turn the Power Pad to open wings or press the button on top of the shuttle.

You'll need to use your own kidpower to launch this spaceship and blast off on your own imaginative adventures though. There are also more compartments on the back of the Buzz Robot and two compartments at the top of the arms to further the play. Also, Buzz and the alien can be easily stored in the space ship or foot for easy postplay cleanup. It does work with other Imaginext figures which are available and sold separately. Even after he first opened it. Hes been playing with it for 2 days now. Loves the missile shooter and the claw. The detachable escape pod is a hit. It comes with 3 missiles, mini buzz light year and an alien toy. Very cheap plastic, no lights or sounds, and the feature that happens when you turn the power pack wings popping out rarely works as it doesnt sit well in its spot. Definitely not worth the same price as the other ones we have. Complete waste of money and plastic. It is certainly not worth 40.00. It seems very flimsy and fragile. Depending on how the grandson acts about it I may return it and get him something better build and study from Amazon. See more Sam, December 13, 2019 0 0 Average Rating 3.0 out of 5 stars Ok toy, good concept, could have been made better My 5 year old son loves this toy however, there is not much to it. Its top heavy so if arms are out, it falls over. Cute idea that could have been built better. The price point is high for what it is. Happy I got it half off or Id be not happy about the purchase.
